Abandoned places are empty, broken, mute spaces, where the passage of time becomes evident in every step. I find them to be a reflection of the body; the body is a space for memories, where one can find scars, experiences, identity... Memoria Corporis is a journey through the body, a memory of myself, just as if in the past I had left a trail in every corner, on every wall, in every crack.

Enric Garay

Bio

Born in 1985, I approached to photography in 2010.

After completing my university studies I begun a journey of experimentation with analog photography and in 2012 I become a member of the Photographic Association Nag space where I start to print my negatives using creative techniques.

Enric Garay

My background in photography is basically self-taught complemented by specialized workshops.

I follow my process of introspection and rediscovery of reality through photography, which has led me to develop my first series Memoria corporis.
